Affect Railroad Building in Washington Territory.

It is the evident intention of the Montana and Canada Railway company to have work on their proposed road begun this year. To this end a party of surveyors will at once start in the field to revise the old survey and permanently locate the line. A party of surveyors arrived in Helena last evening from St. Paul, and registered at the Merchants hotel as Northern Pacific employes, but it is known that these gentlemen, who are fully equipped for workhave been sent out to work on the location of the new line and will start out to-day or to-morrow. While the start out to-day or to-morrow. While the road could not be constructed this year a good start will be made that it can be put in operation the early part of 1890. The party is composed of J. H. Clark, E. Man-chester, W. E. Denhaur, F. W. Sammor, R. T. Webster, O. M. Axtell, Chas. Hav-lone, R. T. Walters and Geo. G. Hough.

Villard Controls It. Villard's control of the Oregon Trans continental stock will, it is said, seriously interfere with the advent of the Oregon Railway and Navigation lines. No more work will be done on the road from Spo kane Falls to Rockford to meet that system until after the election of the Oregon company in Portland, Or., next month company in Portland, Or., next month.
Orders were given to build immediately
westward on the Central Washington & Big Bend branch of the Northern Pacific
from Davenport line to Wilbur this year, and the branch extended north towards the Okanogan mining district. Iron and first freight cars of the Spokane Northern were received to-day. Track laying will commence as soon as the engines arrive
this week.

Great Railway Project. A railway along the Grand canyon of th Colorado river, whose walls in some places rise thousands of feet above the water, is the most striking of the numerous railway projects of this year. Among the advan ages claimed by the projectors are that the grade will be only about five feet to the mile, compared with grades of seventy-five to 100 feet which other railways to the Pacific coast have to encounter; that the road will open up "the greatest scenic route in the world," will develop a country cossessed of inexhaustible deposits of the case and precious metals, stone, iime, salt, forests and grazing lands, will have no snow to trouble it and will have water running past every foot of it; that all freights will be delivered to it on a or west. With these and other advantage claimed the proposed Denver, Colorade Canyon & Pacific railroad enterprise cer sinly has unusual claims and attention. he road is projected to run from near Grand Junction in western Colorado to San Diego on the California coast, a dis-tance stated at 1.050 miles, of which but 200 miles lie in the Grand canyon. It is said that not more than a score of people have ever gone through the canyon, several lives having been lost in the attempt, and the question whether a railway could be built there even if the money were forthcoming has yet to be solved.

Oakes, of the Northern Pacific, and General Manager Odell are warm porsonal friends, having known each other and worked together for many years. antly accepted a more advantageous offer as superintendent of the Chesapeake and Onio railroad. It is known that some of the Wisconsin Central and Northern Pacife people are layered by the Chesapeake. ern Pacific people are largely interested in the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, and it is the interest of these roads to be in harmony with the Baltimore system. This, it is thought, has been accomplished by Mr. Odel's election, which may be the first step in the direction of a combination between the three roads, making a line stretching from the Atlantic to the Preise. stretching from the Atlantic to the Pacific. The fact that the former general manager of the Baltimore & Ohio was given the sub ordinate position of general manager of th western lines in order to make room for Mr. Odell gives color to the story that the Wisconsin Central Northern Pacific peopl had a hand in the election of the latter.

There was Parole in 1876, Himfavorites. There was Parole in 1876, Him-yar in 1878 and Runnymede in 1882, all of which were even stronger favorites than Proctor Knott, but all of which were compelled to strike their colors to some less fancied colt. Runnymede was taken west after a great trial at Sheepshead Bay, which the Saun-terer witnessed. This famous son of Bil-let, with 121 pounds up, covered the Derby distance in 2:40\(\frac{1}{4}\). The Dwyer Bros. and their friends thought a repetition of this performance even would be good enough to win in a walk. Runnymede was backed
